INFORMATION: Before a case can be heard by the Family Court in the 8th Judicial District, the court must have jurisdiction over the parties and the subject matter. A court may hear the case if a party resides in the state. The state will have jurisdiction over the children if Nevada is the "home state" of the children. Home state means the children have lived here for at least the past 6 months. A court will have subject matter jurisdiction if it is the type of matter that can be heard in family court such as divorce, custody, paternity, etc.

CUSTODY

LEGAL CUSTODY refers to the basic responsibility for a child and the parent's ability to access information and make major decisions that affect the child, including the child's healthcare, education, and religious upbringing. There are two kinds of legal custody:

- Joint Legal Custody: Judges generally must award both parents joint legal custody so that both parents can make major decisions about the child.
- Sole Legal Custody: This gives one parent the right to make major decisions concerning the child. This is not ordered very often.

(50) Legal Custody (check one)

- The parties should share JOINT LEGAL custody of the child(ren).
- Plaintiff should have SOLE LEGAL custody of the child(ren).
- Defendant should have SOLE LEGAL custody of the child(ren).

PHYSICAL CUSTODY refers to the amount of time the children spend with each parent. There are three different types of physical custody a judge can order:

- Joint Physical Custody: Each parent has the children at least 40% of the time. This amounts to at least 146 days per calendar year. Judges must generally award joint physical custody to both parents unless certain exceptions apply. With joint physical custody, each parent has significant periods of time with the child. It DOES NOT MEAN that each parent has an exact equal amount of time with the child. The significant time may be worked out over longer periods such as weekly, monthly, or even annually. Joint physical custody does not mean that there will be no child support obligation.
- Primary Physical Custody: One parent has the children more than 60% of the time during the year. The other parent will have "parenting time" or "visitation."
- Sole Physical Custody: One parent has the children 100% of the time, and the other parent has no visitation or extremely limited (possibly supervised) visitation. This is not ordered very often.

(51) Physical Custody (check one)

- The parties should share JOINT PHYSICAL custody of the child(ren). Each parent must have the child(ren) approximately 40% of the time, or 146 days per year).
- The (check one) Plaintiff / Defendant should have PRIMARY PHYSICAL custody of the child(ren).

in the amount of $ _____ per month. This is based on: (check one)

- The statutory minimum of $100/month per child.
- The calculation from the Child Support Worksheet.

(57) "30/30 Rule" - Do you want to use this rule?

- Yes
- No

This rule helps guide parents in how to pay uninsured medical/dental expenses. This rule requires the parents to follow these guidelines for payment.

1. A parent who pays a medical or dental expense for a child has 30 days to send proof of the expenses to the other parent.
2. The other parent then has 30 days to reimburse the other parent half the cost.

(58) Tax Deduction. (check all that apply) IRS rules state that the custodial parent usually has the right to claim the child on their taxes. Talk to a tax professional if you need tax advice.

- The Plaintiff should claim the following child(ren) as dependents for tax purposes every year: (insert child(ren)'s names)

Child's Name

- The Defendant should claim the following child(ren) as dependents for tax purposes every year: (insert child(ren)'s names)

- The tax deduction should alternate, with Plaintiff claiming the child(ren) in (check one) even / odd years, and Defendant claiming the child(ren) the other years.

INFORMATION: Establishing paternity does not automatically entitle a parent to change the name of the child. A father who desires to have the name of the child changed to reflect his family name, must ask the court for that relief in the initial Complaint and/or no later than the time of the hearing. If the request is not made in the initial Complaint, then the father will have to file a separate action for a name change. The court will consider many factors including the age of the child, the desires of an older child, hyphenating the name or changing a middle name.

(59) Birth Certificate / Name Change: (check all that apply)

- The child's birth certificate should not be changed.
- The child's birth certificate should be changed to state that the father of the minor child is _____
